NO MATTER what national complications may take place in Europe, France and Austria will join hands together. The death of Maximilian appears to have cemented the Emperors of those two nations together, and the friendly interchange of civilities between them seems to establish the earnestness of their friendship. France needs the support of Austria, and Austria leans on France for strength and protection. Neither one of them is as potent as of yore, and both doubtless feel that they must make way for more progressive nations, who press forward to occupy the high positions they have hitherto filled.

AFFAIRS IN ITALY have not materially changed. Garibaldi is at Monte Morio with his troops, undaunted and determined. He is in no humor to give up his long cherished designs at the bidding of Victor Emanuel, while his army stands flushed with victory at the very walls of Rome. The Italian army had crossed the frontier yesterday, and was marching on the insurgents. The French fleet from Toulon had arrived at Civita Vecchia, while fresh troops were preparing to depart from the former place. In view of the present situation, with the Italian and French Governments arrayed against him, Garibaldi cannot hope to accomplish his undertaking, but if the complications growing out of the Roman question result in a Conference of the European Powers for settlement, his fond desire may be realized.

AN AMERICAN gentleman, who has spent the last seven years in Europe, and has watched with great interest all developments relating to industrial pursuits, has reached this conclusion:

"England has got to do one of two things—come back to protection or stop emigration. Every day satisfies me that this is so, and that if she does not do it the days of her commercial greatness are numbered, and she must cease to be what she now is, the first manufacturing country of the world. I sent a slip to Mr. Wills last week, cut from the Daily News, and copying an article upon the stagnation of the iron trade in Scotland, showing that one of the main causes for this was the Belgian competition. The fact is, that since the Cobden treaty, England is brought for the first time directly in competition with the cheap labor of the continent. The manufacturers hope to meet this by bringing down the price of labor to a level with that on the continent; but as soon as she begins to depress it, the operatives, or such as can beg or borrow the means, emigrate."

Nor is this gentleman alone. English manufacturers, in numerous departments, find it even now exceedingly difficult to bear up under the competition they experience, particularly from France and Belgium. How long this condition of affairs will remain before the government will be constrained to fall back openly upon the doctrine and practice of Protection, it would be useless to conjecture; but it is easy to see that result cannot be long delayed. Stringent legislative measures to stop emigration is so far distasteful to British ideas and habits, that it will hardly be resorted to, and the other alternative must shortly be embraced.

THE SCHOOL CENSUS of Cincinnati has just been completed. Supposing thirty-three per cent. of the population to be between the ages of five and twenty-one years, this would show an aggregate population of 329,379. Taking the safer estimate of two and a half persons to each individual rated in the school census, the total number of inhabitants would be 274,457. In 1860 the population was 161,044; and this would show an increase in seven years of 113,956. The Gazette adds:

"A very large per centage of the people who do business in the city now reside in the numerous settlements which have grown up outside of the city limits, including Covington and Newport. Including the two last named places, and the county townships, the population must be fully 400,000. In 1860, the population of Hamilton county, including Cincinnati, was 210,000. It is now at least 350,000.

ON SUNDAY the St. Vincent German Orphan Asylum of St. Louis was burned. The fire was caused by a defective flue, and the house was rendered totally unfit for use. All of the furniture was saved. One hundred and thirty-six children were thrown on the hospitality of the neighbors by this casualty. The loss is roughly estimated at between eight thousand and ten thousand dollars. ANOTHER stranger has been robbed in St. Louis. This time the victim is from Indiana, and was robbed of but forty dollars, which, however, was all he had. St. Louis is getting rather an unenviable notoriety for this sort of thing.

GOV. BROWNLOW, of Tennessee, makes this excellent hit:

"Say to our brethren of New York who, through the press, found so much fault with our style of conducting affairs during the last contest, that we expect them to show by their triumph in November that the manner in which they carry on political campaigns is much more effective than ours, and that nothing short of a splendid victory can possibly justify them in our estimation for having given us so much excellent advice during our recent struggle."

THE Philadelphia North American very properly demands an investigation into the causes of the cholera which appeared on board the receiving ship Potomac at that port, and raged with such violence for a short time. It is stated that an officer of the Navy Yard, Capt. DeCamp, wrote to the Department protesting against the use of this vessel, and prophesying disease if the vessel was not cleaned before again populated.

MR. FRANK COWAN, of Greensburg, son of the late Senator, is said to be preparing a book for the press entitled, "A Dictionary of the Proverbs and Proverbial Phrases of the English Language." Mr. Cowan is a thoroughly accomplished and highly educated gentleman, and is eminently qualified for his undertaking.

TWO persons were arrested on Saturday last in Chicago for stealing $12,000 from a man stopping at the Lindell House, in St. Louis. The robbery was committed some two years ago, but until Saturday the detectives were foiled in their attempts at ferreting out the thief. The money is all gone, but the property bought will nearly cover the loss.

EVERY one of the five or six Japanese troupes in this country has "the original All Right." The poor boy was also in Paris and was killed in Chicago. We know of no one who has a harder or more varied life than this ubiquitous boy seems to live.

SEVERAL thousand dollars worth of damage was recently done by fire to the stock of Howlett's large mills, situate on the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad.

THE Lancaster Examiner says there would be "sublime justice in the nomination of Hannibal Hamlin for Vice President, by the Republicans."

ITALY.

PARIS, October 28.—Evening.—Several more French ships of war left Toulon during the day for Civita Vecchia.

The entire press is loud in praises of Victor Emanuel for his recent proclamation denouncing Garibaldi.

GARIBALDI MAINTAINS HIS GROUND.

Late dispatches report that Garibaldi is still holding his position near Monetrotondo.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN FRANCE AND ITALY.

It is reported that an agreement has been arrived at between France and Italy, whereby the troops of the former will attack the insurgents. The latter are thereupon expected to retreat from the Papal territory into the dominion of King Victor Emanuel, where they will be quietly disarmed by the Italian troops.

ITALIAN PRIME MINISTER—MOUSTIER ON FRENCH INTERVENTION.

PARIS, October 29—Noon.—It is reported that Menabrea, Prime Minister to Italy, is pledged to accompany the French troops to Rome.

Moustier has recently issued a note explaining the intervention of France in the Italian question. He regards the expedition as justifiable, for the reason that Italy failed to protect the Pope in his lawful and time-honored rights. A sense of honor and due regard for the opinions of mankind impelled the Government to this course. Moustier asserts the agency of France will proceed no further than is necessary to crush the armed rebellion against the Holy Father and free the Potificial territory from the tread of hostile soldiers. When these objects are accomplished the troops of France will be withdrawn and a Conference of the Great Powers of Europe called to settle the Roman question.

TELEGRAPH CUT—NATIONAL DIET.

FLORENCE, October 29.—Telegraphic communication with Rome has suddenly ceased, the Insurgents having probably cut the wires. Owing to the serious aspect of political affairs the National Diet will be called together at an early day.

LATEST FROM ROME—ORSINI SHELLS PLACED IN THE STREETS—GARIBALDI'S APPROACH AWAITED.

PARIS, October 29—Evening.—The latest dispatches from Rome, before the destruction of telegraphic communication, are highly important. The insurgents in the city were actively engaged, and an outbreak was expected. The victorious troops of Garibaldi were only six miles away, and organized for an attack on the Eternal City. Orsini shells were being fixed in the streets by the Party of Action, who seemed to be impatiently awaiting the arrival of Garibaldi. The precaution of the authorities for the preservation of order were apparently ineffective.

ARRIVAL OF THE FRENCH FLEET.

Dispatches from Cevita Vecchia announce that the French fleet had arrived without accident. Troops and munitions of war were being landed. The Pope was hourly expected.

ROYAL BANQUET AT HOTEL DE VILLE—SPEECH OF THE AUSTRIAN EMPEROR.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The municipality of Paris gave a grand banquet to the Emperor Napoleon and Empress and Emperor Francis Joseph, at the Hotel de Ville, which was splendidly decorated for the occasion. The Emperor of Austria, in course, made an eloquent and feeling speech. He returned thanks to the Emperor and Empress, to the municipality of Paris, and to the people of France for the noble hospitality with which he had been received, and solemnly invoked closer amity between the Emperors of France and Austria. In this grand spectacle of international hospitality he beheld a new pledge of peace for Europe, and a fresh guarantee for the progress of the nations. His speech was received with profound emotions by the distinguished company.

During the progress of the festival the Hotel de Ville, which was brilliantly illuminated, was surrounded by a vast assemblage, who repeatedly cheered the Emperor Francis Joseph and the Emperor Napoleon and Empress. When the party, at the conclusion of the entertainment, passed through the crowd in their carriages on their return to the Tulleries, and the most enthusiastic demonstrations were made by the people.

FENIAN EXCITEMENT IN LIVERPOOL—EXTRAORDINARY PRECAUTIONS.

LIVERPOOL, October 29—Noon.—The city is the scene of a Fenian panic. Reports of mysterious proceedings among the Irish inhabitants caused the authorities to take extraordinary precautions. The armories of the volunteers and gun shops in the city are guarded, and the police patrols have been doubled.

APPLICATION FOR REMOVAL OF FENIAN PRISONERS REFUSED.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Digby Seymour, the principal counsel for the defense, has made another application for the removal, to London, of the trials just commenced at Manchester, on the ground of the hostility of public feeling against the accused in the latter city, but the government has refused to grant the request.

TRIALS AT DUBLIN.

MANCHESTER, October 30—Evening.—The Fenian trials have been adjourned for the day. The city is perfectly quiet.

DINNER TO D'ISRAELI.

EDINBURG, October 30.—A public dinner was given to Hon. Benjamin D'Israeli yesterday. D'Israeli, to a complimentary toast, made a characteristic speech. He gave the history of the reform bill, recounted the action of the different political parties in England in relation to the subject, and closed with a strong argument in justification of the tory party for their course in advocating and triumphantly carrying through Parliament the representation of the people's bill. His remarks were frequently interrupted by expressions of attention and approval, and when he took his seat he was loudly cheered.

For Steamer Russia.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, October 27.—The Bishop of Iowa, before leaving England, addressed a letter to the Bishop of London, expressing the great pleasure his visit to London has given him, and his appreciation of the kindness and hospitality received on all sides, but declares he is deeply grieved at the wide spread of ritualism. In touching and earnest words he urgently advises English Churchmen to cling to the simple doctrines of the primitive Church of the English Reformation.

King William, of Prussia, had a narrow escape with his life through an accident on the Wurtemburg Railroad. The train upset, but he was uninjured.

A Naples letter to the London Times dated October 10th, says: Two or three days since something like an attempt was meditated against the life of the Pope. A man was arrested under the colonade of St. Peter's at the moment the Pope was about to go out for a drive. He had a pistol concealed under his clothes, but what his intentions were is not as yet precisely known.

Death of Ex-Governor Andrew—Arrested for Forgery.

BOSTON, October 30.—John A. Andrew, Ex-Governor of Massachusetts, died at six o'clock this evening. At nine last evening he was at his residence, in Charles street, conversing with a friend, his family being present. He had premonitory symptoms of apoplexy, and requested his family to leave the room which they did, under the supposition that he had private business to transact. He then requested his friend to call on Dr. Derby, and subsequently Drs. Bigelow and Cabot were in attendance. He remained unconscious from the time of the attack until his death.

THE CONFISCATION ACT.

The refusal of the Supreme Court of this district yesterday to grant a writ of error for an appeal from a decision of a lower court to the Supreme Court of the United States, on the question touching the constitutionality of the Confiscation Acts, was because of gross informality in the writ itself.

UNION REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE.

It is understood that the Union Republican Congressional Committee will, without any change in its present organization, be united with the Republican National Committee to conduct the Presidential campaign in the United States.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN CONVENTION—THE "COLORED" QUESTION.

The Second Annual Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Maryland and District of Columbia met to-day. Among the delegates were three representing the Colored Young Men's Association of Washington. One, by a vote of nineteen to ten, was added to the list of vice presidents. This created much dissatisfaction on the part of some white delegates from Maryland, who earnestly protested against the act of the majority. They wished to secede, being opposed to whites and blacks mingling in the same body. The colored Vice President regretted that the presence of delegates of an association formed for christian purposes should produce discord. Several white delegates, looking at the matter in a christian light, said there could be no real cause for serious dissatisfaction. One of the objectors declared he had been a Confederate officer and could with sincerity extend the right hand of fellowship to colored men, and to prove the truth of his utterance he stepped forward and earnestly shook the colored Vice President by the hand. Notwithstanding this, he would not concede the propriety of making a special provision where by a colored person should be made Vice President. Others declared similar news, adding they were the first colored men. The discussion was earnest on all sides, when a white delegate, for sake of harmony, offered a resolution requesting the colored Vice President to withdraw from that office. The Convention, by a majority of two, refused to lay the resolution on the table, and by a majority of six refused to suspend the rules in order to allow a vote on the resolution.

CONSERVATIVE ARMY AND NAVY UNION.

The Conservative Army and Navy Union, of Washington, has issued an address to all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, setting forth the leading principles and urging nominations for office in every case of men who have been supporters of the late war for the Union.

CORRESPONDENCE HOAX.

The alleged correspondence between Earl Russell and Lord Amberly is pronounced a hoax, it having been produced by the Nottingham papers as a mere burlesque on British politics. The President has never seen Amberly, nor is it known he has yet visited Washington.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

Among the visitors to Gen. Grant today was the Governor of Borneo, who is represented to be an American named Torrey, originally from Roxbury, Mass.

YELLOW FEVER IN PORT.

Yellow fever is reported as prevailing on board the British steamer Corsica, lately arrived from Nassau. Two men have died and others are still sick. For some unexplained reason the vessel was allowed to come up from quarantine to Jersey City. She has since been ordered back.

RUMORED INSURANCE DEFALCATION.

There was a rumor this morning on Wall street that a heavy defalcation had occurred in the office of the Pacific Mutual Insurance Company. The fact is simply that the President of the Company has resigned. The cause for his resignation is said to be financial embarrassment, but the Post is assured the Company will not be affected.

ATLANTA, GA., October 30.—General Pope has ordered the polls to be kept open until Saturday evening, it having been ascertained that the time allotted was not sufficient to permit a full vote.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

MOBILE, October 30.—There were but two interments from yellow fever in this city to-day.

—Augusta J. Evans, author of Beulah, will soon publish a volume with the title of Inez. It was Miss Evans' first book, and was printed ten years ago; but to use Hume's celebrated phrase, "fell still born from the press." Her recent hits have inspired the publisher with the hope that her first-born will now command a more flattering reception.

—Miss Adelaide Sanborne, of Lowell, Vt., committed suicide on Wednesday morning, the 9th inst., by hanging herself in an out building. She was to be married soon, but for some unknown reason she became opposed to the engagement, and was heard to say "There would be a funeral before there was a wedding."

THE BOAT RACE.

Full Particulars—Coulter the Winner—Time 41:30.

So ended one of the most interesting and fairly contested races ever pulled over a Pittsburgh course. The time made is not as good as that of some former races, but we doubt whether it can be beaten over the same course.

After an informal decision by the judges in favor of Coulter, he pulled leisurely up the river toward his boat house, and Mekeil turned the head of his craft down the river and pulled for Hamill's boat house, which had been towed up for the occasion. The crowd quietly dispersed, each taking his way homeward, apparently well satisfied, except a few who had been so unfortunate as to risk their money on the wrong man.

HOW THE RESULT WAS RECEIVED.

The vast concourse of people on the Elector sent up cheer after cheer for the victor, and the crowds which lined either bank caught up the enthusiasm, and the wildest excitement prevailed. Nor was Mekeil forgotten. Those who had watched the race, and admired the pluck and tenacity of the brave New Yorker, could not but sympathize with him and make him feel that they delighted to pay him honor, and cheers went up for the defeated in right good earnest. Everybody now recognize in Coulter a fitting companion for Hamill, and more than one person felt the pardonable pride swelling in his bosom for his native city, which has produced a brace of champion oarsmen. We can claim for our city the credit of producing a Hamill and a Coulter, either of whom is the peer of any oarsman in the country.

The Mansion House Homicide.

The Coroner's jury, impanneled to investigate the matter of the death of Jas. A. Monaghan, reassembled last evening at the Mayor's office, at half past seven o'clock, when the following additional testimony was taken:

Dr. Hamilton first stated to the physicians present the circumstances connected with the case, describing the deceased and the condition he was in when he was called to see him, on the morning preceding his death. It was simply a reiteration of his testimony before the jury which has been heretofore published.

Dr. Reiter, sworn—There is no doubt in my mind that the deceased came to his death from violent concussion of the brain. Men are often killed by that amount of force which disturbes the functions and reactions. From Dr. Hamilton's statement I have no doubt that deceased came to his death from the blow received on the side of his head.

Dr. James Kerr, sworn—It is probable that a laceration of the membranes of the brain also the brain structure may be affected by a contusion or a violent stroke on the cranium, or directly opposite or nearly so to the part injured. A stroke sufficiently violent to affect the brain tissue would have left some evidence of concussion. I would be slow to believe, if there was no direct evidence of a blow having been received on the side of the head in this case, that deceased had received one, or that if so it was the cause of his death.

Dr. King, sworn—It is my opinion that the injury to the brain was caused by the blow received on the frontal eminence. I concur with Dr. Hamilton. From my reading I would suppose that the injury was caused from the blow received on the front part of the head.

Dr. John Botten, sworn—I think it is possible that the breaking down of the brain tissue may have occurred from the counter stroke on the back of the head. Death or heaven-born inspiration, E. morta, or perhaps more so in the sorrowful descriptive song of "The Storm," by Hullah. Miss Helen McCaffrey developed a finely cultured voice, which, under perfect control, ascended the scale and grasped the higher notes with wonderful ease and grace. Madame Behren's rendition of Valse de Concert was brilliant, as was also the beautiful ballad "The Way to Paradise." Mr. Theo. Habelmann, late of the German Opera Troupe, sustained the high reputation he had previously won for himself in this city, and was repeatedly encored and applauded. Mr. J. Benditz, the representative of our home talent, sustained his clear-voiced basso, rendered the ballad "In happy moments" in very good style, but his selection was by no means calculated to display the full depth, power and cultivation of his rich voice. To-night the second and last concert will take place, and we earnestly advise our readers not to fail attending, if they can appreciate the true coin in vocal music. Seats may be secured at Mellor's music store, 81 Wood street.

The assortment embraces all the latest styles and novelties in the way of muffs, victorines, collars, &c., and is offered at greatly decreased prices from those prevailing last winter. The entire stock is fresh from the best furriers of the East and guaranteed of superior quality. The firm have also on hand a very complete stock of men's and boys' hats and caps of all styles, which they offer at reasonable and inducing prices. Persons in need of anything in their line will do well to call at the store of Messrs. Pratt & Benny.

New Livery Stables.—We direct the attention of our readers to the recently established Pennsylvania Avenue Livery and Sale Stables, Nos. 138 and 140 Pennsylvania avenue, Mr. Wm. Ward, proprietor. These are among the best stocked and most complete establishments of the character in the city, and are eminently worthy of patronage. The carriages, buggies and turnouts generally are all new, handsome and substantial, while the stock is such as behind which any one might take pride to ride. The rates for funerals are very reasonable, four dollars a piece for carriages and five dollars for a hearse. We commend these stables to the attention of our readers who may want to hire, or effect the purchase or sale of horses.

MR. GEO. K. KELLEY.—Dear Sir, I have been troubled for some years with the complaint described by your advertisement of Dr. Sargent's Diuretic or Backache Pills, and concluded to give them a trial, and am glad to say they afforded me immediate relief. I cheerfully recommend them to any one suffering from like symptoms, feeling confident they will do all you claim for them.

Ladies' Furs, Ladies' Furs.

The largest stock in the city of Siberian Squirrel, Hungarian Fitch, Mink and Hudson Bay Sable for children and ladies, can now be seen at Gardner & Stewart's, West corner of Market and Fourth streets. These Furs are all entirely new, and are for sale very low, cheaper than horses both fell and upon regaining their feet started off at full speed. Dr. Aborn escaped with a pretty severe bruise on the left arm, but Dr. Barr was less fortunate, having a rib broken. Brick piles are dangerous obstructions on the streets after night and we think parties should be held responsible where no precaution is taken to guard against accidents of the kind just noted.

Painful Accident.

George W. Cooder, a resident of the Eighth Ward, met with a very painful accident yesterday morning, by which he may probably loose the use of his left hand. He was shooting rats near his dwelling with a revolver, and the door of the house being open, his wife requested him to close it, lest the report of the pistol might wake the child which was asleep. He was holding the pistol in his right hand, the hammer drawn back ready to fire, and in reaching to close the door he pulled the trigger and exploded the pistol, the ball with which it was loaded entering the palm of his left hand, running up into the forearm about four or five inches, where it lodged and still remains. Dr. M'Cook was summoned, but could not extract the ball on account of the swollen condition of the arm. The wound is a very severe one and the injured man is suffering much pain from it.

Alleged Seduction.

Henry Painter, arrested in Lawrence county, has been held in $4,000 by Alderman Butler, for a hearing on a charge of seduction, preferred by Miss Kiester, daughter of James M. Kiester, residing at Irwin's Station. Miss K. left her home and came to this city during the holding of the State Fair in company, it seems, with her alleged seducer, who had promised to make her his wife, which promise he has failed to keep. Her father searched and advertised in vain with a view to induce her to return home, and finally left the matter in the hands of Alderman Butler.

An Imposition.

We have on several occasions heretofore referred to the imposition practiced by hackmen on the traveling public, who are necessitated to procure their services, and called the attention of the city authorities to the fact, not from any desire to reflect on those whose duties require them to look into the matter, but rather for the purpose of making it known to them, that it might be prevented hereafter, and thus protect strangers from gross imposition. An ordinance was passed by the City Councils some months since regulating the rates to be charged, which limited the fare to fifty cents for each passenger, and twenty-five cents each for trunks inside the city boundaries. The ordinance also requires hackmen to have a printed copy of the same conspicuously posted in their vehicles. The ordinance has been printed on cards for that purpose, but here the matter has been allowed to rest. We have examined a number of hacks and so far have been unable to find a single hackman, who has complied with the requirements of the ordinance. We do not pretend to say whose fault it is, because we do not know; but we do know that scarcely a day passes during which some stranger is not swindled out of several dollars by these thieving hackmen, which would not be the case if the requirements of that ordinance were strictly enforced. As an evidence of the manner in which strangers are fleeced, we give the following particular incident, which, by the way, is only one of many that occur daily:

A gentleman from the west arrived at the Union Depot Tuesday evening on one of the western trains, and desiring to go to the St. Lawrence hotel, which is situated on the corner of Canal and Penn streets, he enquired its whereabouts, and was informed by a hackman that it was in the lower part of the city. He took a carriage, and after being hauled around several squares was landed at the St. Lawrence, and charged the moderate sum of three dollars for his ride. He remonstrated, but was informed that it was the customary charge, whereupon he paid it, and "hacky" departed chuckling over his "good job." This, as we before remarked, is not an isolated case, but only one of many impositions that that are being practiced every day, and which might be prevented by a proper enforcement of the ordinance passed by City Councils to prevent it. We hope the matter will be attended to by those whose province it is to enforce the laws.

The Concert Last Night.

Despite the rain which unceasingly fell last evening, there assembled a comfortably large and brilliant audience at the Academy of Music, to greet the ever popular favorite, Miss Caroline McCaffrey, of Philadelphia, and the professional artists who assisted in the Concert given under her auspices. The occasion, so far as those on the programme were concerned, was a grand success, and the audience repeatedly gave evidence of satisfaction by rapturous and subdued applause. Miss McCaffrey has wonderful power as a vocalist, and in many ways is vastly superior to any contralto in the musical world. While bright and sparkling in merry, heart stirring executions, still her best efforts are those in which she pours out, in deliciously ravishing sounds, the bewailment of a grief stricken heart, as was evidenced in the mournful rendition of Bonnie Heaven-born Inspiration, E. morta, or perhaps more so in the sorrowful descriptive song of "The Storm," by Hullah. Miss Helen McCaffrey developed a finely cultured voice, which, under perfect control, ascended the scale and grasped the higher notes with wonderful ease and grace. Madame Behren's rendition of Valse de Concert was brilliant, as was also the beautiful ballad "The Way to Paradise." Mr. Theo. Habelmann, late of the German Opera Troupe, sustained the high reputation he had previously won for himself in this city, and was repeatedly encored and applauded. Mr. J. Benditz, the representative of our home talent, sustained his clear-voiced basso, rendered the ballad "In happy moments" in very good style, but his selection was by no means calculated to display the full depth, power and cultivation of his rich voice. To-night the second and last concert will take place, and we earnestly advise our readers not to fail attending, if they can appreciate the true coin in vocal music. Seats may be secured at Mellor's music store, 81 Wood street.

Hats, Caps and Furs, at Pratt & Henry's, No. 107 Federal Street, Allegheny.

The light fall of snow flakes last evening warns us that winter is approaching, that it is not too early to speak of the fine stock of ladies' furs, of every quality and variety, at the well known and popular house of Pratt & Benny, 107 Federal street, Allegheny City. The assortment embraces all the latest styles and novelties in the way of muffs, victorines, collars, &c., and is offered at greatly decreased prices from those prevailing last winter. The entire stock is fresh from the best furriers of the East and guaranteed of superior quality. The firm have also on hand a very complete stock of men's and boys' hats and caps of all styles, which they offer at reasonable and inducing prices. Persons in need of anything in their line will do well to call at the store of Messrs. Pratt & Benny.

MODERATION.

Moderation is rather a negative, than a positive virtue, and for that very reason so difficult to observe. To practice moderation we must have our passions, inclinations and propensities under a strict and rigid control, and no man of experience will deny the difficulty of self-government. Other virtues of a positive character, apparently much harder to observe, are, in fact, much more easily exercised, because they either flow from our individual disposition, or are the results of short-lived impulses. To throw ourselves into a conflagration or into the turbulent waters for the deliverance of a fellow being; to spend, with a liberal hand, for purposes of charity, or to deny dear pleasures, to make others happy, is comparatively easy, because it requires only a short exertion, unpolluted, unblemished by a reaction, which in consequence of human weakness, would be almost unavoidable. Moderation, on the other hand, together with its sister virtues of patience and toleration, ceases to be a virtue, if in an unguarded moment, we neglect to follow its precepts. Yet, hard as its acquirements may be, let no one hesitate a moment to attain it; for without moderation all other virtues and accomplishments lose their lustre. Without moderation there is no dignity, no usefulness in man.

The mind of the moderate man may be compared to a country with a delightful clime, distinguished by mildness, salubrity and steadiness. The promise of the morning is fulfilled by the evening, and no sudden changes, storms or hurricanes deter its inhabitants from their regular pursuits. How different from this is the spectacle of a man, who lacks this rare virtue. Not only his neighbors are unable to rely upon him, but he himself must find it entirely unsafe to trust his own desires, purposes and inclinations.

There is no circumstance in life where moderation is not the foundation, the first condition of happiness. The relations of husband and wife, of parents and children, of friends to friends, of master and servant, are a source rather of misery than happiness, if the cardinal virtue of moderation is wanting. True, we see rash men, men of an uncontrollable temper, caress their wives and children in moments of good natured ease—but of what value is an affection, a deportment, that becomes ruffled under the slightest breeze, and that vanishes when black clouds overspread the horizon of life? And what we said of the husband is equally, yes, even more true of the wife and mother. The disposition either spreads sunshine over the household, or lays a cold, damp veil over everything genial and pleasant.

Not only the happiness of the family depends on the mutual moderation of its members; the character of the children is moulded by either the presence or absence of this virtue. A father that has no control over himself, is totally unfit to model the character of his children and if they do not prove an entire failure he can surely not claim this as a merit of his own. More than the father, the mother influences and forms the character of her infant children, because she is almost always with them during their tender, impressable age, and, therefore, moderation is a more necessary virtue in her than in the husband.

Thus we might trace the necessity of this virtue through every institution of society, every condition of life. We might prove that moderation enables us to better bear fortune and misfortune, the former by checking the exuberance of our spirits, the latter by sustaining and steeling our mind against despondency. But so large a field is more than we can wander over in a limited time and space and it will be necessary to confine ourselves to certain margins.

The special requirements of our age guide us in our choice and induce us to speak of the great, yes absolute necessity of moderation in public life. Even here we must confine ourselves to limits, and leaving the divine, the teacher, the merchant and the advocate to their own discrimination, we shall direct our remarks solely to those who make the matters of State, the political affairs of their country, their business. In a Republic, where the masses rule, and where their decision regulates the destinies of the land, it is natural that they should be courted, and that, in order to obtain their suffrages, and thereby power, fair and foul means should be used to work upon and influence them. Men who follow this practice, who neglect the real good of the country for the pursuit of selfish ends; who arouse the passions of the masses in order to serve them at their pleasure, no matter what perils will grow out of this unprincipled conduct; men who, in short, we stigmatize with the significant name of demagogues,—these are totally deficient in this great virtue.

Moderation is essential in the leading Politician; it is also indispensable to the great mass of the people; to the former to prevent him from leading his fellow-citizens into wild and extravagant speculation, to the latter to enable them to withstand the exciting appeals of demagogues and to judge with steady eye the measures calculated to advance their real interests. Demagogues are not of the present day only. Antiquity furnishes us instances of demagogues of the worst kind; but history tells us at the same time, that they only succeeded in working upon the masses, after corruption had begun to infest them, and that the masses, on the other hand, became corrupt because demagogues had commenced their pernicious practices. In the time of the glory of Greece, as well as of Rome, there were no demagogues. Plutarch mentions Cleon, the currier, as the first who appealed to the passions instead of the judgment of the people. He tells us that Cleon was in the habit of running up and down on the platform, of gesticulating wildly with his arms and of brawling out with a loud, excited voice. Nor were these his only bad practices; the contents of his oration were worse than the manner of his delivery. Now with the demagogue Plutarch compares a statesman more gifted, an orator more eloquent, a patriot purer than any other Greece could show at the time of its greatest fame. We allude to Pericles; and what man's heart does not widen with admiration, with a desire of emulation when he reads the magnificent picture which the historian draws of this great man. Pericles surely was no demagogue and possessed no virtue in a greater degree than that of moderation. Look at him as he stands on the tribune, calm, dignified, his arms folded over his bosom, his body immovable, his lips pouring forth a stream of eloquence, chaste, pure, sweet, but irresistible. He despised those tricks and arts by which the sham orator excites the masses. In him there was nothing but what was good, pure, noble, patriotic.

In former years the orators and statesmen of the Republic adopted as models Webster, Clay and others of their contemporaries; tried to excel by the richness of their thoughts and the beauty of their language, rather than by the wildness of their declamation and the fury of their gestures. Now a different taste seems to prevail. Foul invectives, abusive slander and obscene language often disgrace the orator, whose voice echoes in the halls of legislation. Worse than this, he sometimes comes even to blows, and thus furnishes the plainest evidence that he is deficient in the statesman's cardinal virtue—moderation.

When the rudder of a vessel is broken it drifts upon the ocean a prey to wind and waves, and nothing can avert its final destruction. So with the nation that has not learned to check and govern its impulses. Look at the French nation at the time of the first revolution. Unable to moderate their enthusiasm and to govern their passions, they soon lost the control over the ship of state, and rapidly drifted into anarchy, from which only the strong hand of NAPOLEON could and did save them. But the deliverer became also the enslaver; and the French paid by many a bloody war the penalty for not practicing the golden virtue of moderation.

Indeed, the longer we dwell upon this subject the more this unassuming virtue looms out in gigantic proportion, and takes the lead before all others. It is the soil on which they grow; the water that refreshes them; the air in which they breathe and move and have their being. Let this nation, therefore, neglect not its culture. The Americans are, before all others, a nation of impulses. They go ahead in every undertaking with concentrated strength. This same quality that makes them excel in virtue makes them prone to plunge to the deepest pitch of vice, if once they enter upon its ruinous course. The danger arising from strong beverages, from gambling, from prostitution and licentiousness of every kind, is much more imminent to the quick-witted, excitable American youth, than to the duller or, at least, more phlegmatic offspring of other nations. Nothing but the diligent study of the great virtue will guide him through the dangers that beset his path. Let him perfect himself in its precepts and he will come out a model man, individually, socially and politically.

CONDENSED NEWS.

THE University of Cambridge, England, recently conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on quite a number of American Bishops, among others the Rt. Rev. J. H. Hopkins, at one time Rector of Trinity Church of this city, and on the good Bishop of this Diocese, Rt. Rev. Dr. Kerfoot. We suppose that this degree is considered more honorable when received from Cambridge or Oxford than when received from some College of less note.

BUTTON collectors, take notice! It is said that the bones of Egyptian mummies are used by button makers to form black jet buttons for ladies' garments. Little girls, whom we often see with buttons in their mouths, should be cautioned against showing such disrespect to the Pharaohs; besides, they might imbibe a great deal of wickedness in this way, as the evil that men do is buried with their bones, and some of the Egyptians were desperately wicked.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS have regaled the country for weeks past with contradictory reports touching the intentions of the President as to Cabinet changes. So various were these statements that sober citizens began to suspect the writers of these telegrams were speculating upon the length to which popular credulity and patience could be carried; and, probably, they were not far from correct. Now, a correspondent of the Philadelphia Press undertakes to explain the medley after this fashion:

"The changes were to have been effected on the 16th instant, and a circular letter was written by Mr. Johnson himself asking certain gentlemen to accept positions as his constitutional advisers, to which they replied affirmatively. This proposition, coming from Mr. Johnson himself, was viewed by the parties interested in the light of promise, and recently an ex-General from Ohio, another from Missouri, and an ex-New York Governor, were sorely disappointed at not being called to fill the positions respectively of Secretary of War, Postmaster General, and Secretary of State; and a prominent Pennsylvanian was also disappointed at not being able to assume control of the Treasury Department. The game is not up yet, however, and although the New York Democratic Convention, of which ex-Governor Seymour was President, did not even mention the existence of his Accidency, the interested parties hope to be able to persuade Mr. Johnson that it is his duty, as well as his interest, to fulfill his promises, notwithstanding the implied insult deduced from the action of the Convention, for which they claim that the true Conservatives are in no way responsible. To this argument Mr. Johnson replies that he feels assured that New York will elect a Conservative ticket, as matters now stand, and that he is afraid that the proposed change in the Cabinet might be used before the people in a manner prejudicial to his desires; consequently he has postponed the realization of his promises until after the November election. In the meantime Governor Seymour, General Steadman, General Frank Blair, Jr., and other Cabinet aspirants, with their friends, are commencing to realize the fact that Mr. Johnson, although not desirous of aiding the Radical party, is so much incensed at the course of the Democracy, which they represent, that he may be inclined to drop them again."

—The Edwardsville (Illinois) Intelligencer tells the following remarkable story: "A few weeks since the social circles of Edwardsville were agreeably interested by a rumor that one of our wealthiest and most respectable young gentlemen would soon lead to the hymeneal altar a most charming young lady, the daughter of an influential farmer residing near Marine. It was known that the beautiful Miss was having made a large and valuable wardrobe, sparing no expense appropriate to the occasion, and to her station in life. Suddenly, however, there was a rumor that the young lady had become insane. The report proved to be true. She, so soon to become a happy bride, was removed to St. Louis for medical treatment. On last Sabbath, all that was mortal of this young lady passed through town, clad in the sombre vestments of the grave, she having fallen a victim to that terrible disease—the cholera.

—The Chicago Tribune says: A tar named Peter Divine was arrested last night by an officer of the First Precinct, for brutally attacking a number of women on board a canal boat lying in the river, between Randolph and Lake streets. He had seized a huge sheath knife, with which he threatened to annihilate the females, and had it not been for the opportune interference of the police, his threat might have been carried into execution.

In fact, he had progressed half way through the ceremony before the mistake was discovered and the minister set right.

MALARIA EVERYWHERE.

Far by has there been a season as fruitful as this of malarious diseases. Not only in the prairies and in the valleys of the west; not merely in all the old haunts of fever and ague and bilious remittent fever have these prostrating diseases been unusually virulent; but they have extended to towns and cities never before infested with them, and have even climbed the mountains and attacked thousands of people supposed to have been placed, by the laws of nature, above their reach. Hence we are compelled to admit, that a fatal element pervades the universal air this season, and should at once resort to the only appropriate preventive of its consequences HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, a tonic so potent, an unfailing so perfect, an alterative so irresistible, and a stimulant so pure that it enables the system to resist and battle all the prevailing causes of disease. With the confidence that one clothed in insoluble garments might move among hazardous buildings, the man who arms himself against malaria with a powerful defensive medicine may walk a fever scourged district fearless of its baleful influence upon his health. The invalid suffers and remits assistance to others in all parts of the country may be but the forerunners of a deadlier scourge now on its way westward from the far east. Prepare he system with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS for a successful battle with the deadlier causes of all epidemics. Be wise in time!

BLIND EYES RESTORED.

The case to which we alluded some weeks ago, of Christiana Fisher, of Beaver county, is now entirely confirmed by the appearance of Miss Fisher herself, who to-day called on DR. KEYSER in person, to thank him for his genius and skill in restoring her TO ENTIRE AND PERFECT SIGHT. Miss Fisher had been nearly blind for four months. She was so blind that she could not distinguish any object so as to make out what it was. The case is remarkable, as hundreds of cases like hers are doomed to never-ending darkness, on the flimsy pretext that there is no cure, and nothing can be done. She was under DOCTOR KEYSER'S treatment for two months, and before she applied to him, to touch her brother, Simon P. Fisher, slight hopes were entertained of her ever getting her sight. Her case is well known in the neighborhood where she resides, and has been regarded as one of extraordinary recovery.

We, the undersigned, know of the cure of Miss Fisher, and bear willing testimony to the facts above stated.

TRIAL FOR HOMICIDE.

Blazius Rendler was arraigned upon an indictment for murder, it being charged that on the night of the 28th of August last, in the Third ward of Allegheny City, he inflicted a wound upon Louis Hetzel, of which he (Hetzel) died September 5th, at his boarding house, in said city. E. P. Stone and J. W. Taylor, Esqs., appeared for the prisoner, and District Attorney Duff for the Commonwealth.

The following jury were sworn: (1.) James Fawcett, Bank President, Birmingham; (2.) James M. Thompson, farmer, East Deer; (3.) Peter Goodell, grocer, East Birmingham; (4.) John Espy, farmer, Upper St. Clair; (5.) Samuel Neely, farmer, Moon; (6.) John R. Haigh, Ninth ward; (7.) James Ritchie, clerk, Mt. Washington; (8.) William Nixon, farmer, Scott; (9.) Robert J. Eccles, blacksmith, South Pittsburgh; (10.) B. B. Hunnicutt, printer, Sixth ward; (11.) Samuel Gaston, merchant, Sewickley; (12.) John Logan, Pine township.

J. J. Volz, tavern keeper, Ohio street, testified that Hetzel died at his house, where he had been boarding for about two weeks.

Dr. J. P. Alcorn testified that he saw the wounded man early on Tuesday morning, August 28th, nearly dead from hemorrhage; the wound was on the right side of the neck; the external jugular vein was severed, and the internal jugular divided; it was three inches deep, backward and downward; there was a slight wound just below the chin under the jaw. A pair of paper hangers' scissors were shown, with which witness was under the impression the wounds might have been inflicted, the instrument being held with the blades open. The wound was the cause of death.

Ignatius Erhardt testified that he resided in the Fourth ward, Allegheny; deceased and prisoner (his brother-in-law) were painters, and both worked for him last summer; on the night of the 27th of August he and deceased went to the tavern of Mr. Geib, (witness' partner in the painting business) in the Third ward, Allegheny, and there met Rendler, the prisoner; they drank beer together; the time was about ten o'clock; there was some conversation about Rendler's wife, who had complained of him for ill treatment; after twelve o'clock Rendler started away, and called to deceased and witness from the opposite side of the street, using vulgar language; deceased said he would go over and see what Rendler wanted, and followed after him; witness, after a few minutes, also followed, and after he had gone about forty yards (or steps) he met deceased, who said he was cut, and was bleeding from the neck; witness said he did not see the stabbing, and did not know exactly where it was done.

Jacob Vogle testified the difficulty occurred near the corner of Second and Middle streets, about half past twelve o'clock in the night; first saw prisoner and Ehrhardt (previous witness) quarreling about each other's wives; deceased was sitting down near them. Rendler started away and turned into an alley; deceased and Ehrhardt talked together and then started after Rendler, after he had disappeared in the alley; deceased was in advance of Ehrhardt, and upon reaching the alley turned into it, but almost immediately turned back, and again had some talk with Erhardt; deceased then returned into the alley with Ehrhardt, and in two or three minutes deceased came out with his hands to his neck and said he was cut; did not say who cut him. Afterwards, when deceased was taken to Geib's, the prisoner was pointed out by deceased as the man who had cut him, when prisoner started to run; he was pursued by a policeman and arrested.

Joseph Dixsell, of Second street, Allegheny, testified that on the night in question he was awakened by loud talking, and looking out of the window he saw deceased sitting on the sidewalk against Geib's tavern, covered with blood; asked who stabbed him, and some one said, Ehrhart's brother-in-law, Rendler, the prisoner; at this time Rendler was standing on the opposite side of the street. Rendler was arrested and taken to where the deceased was; deceased was asked if the prisoner was the man who stabbed him, and deceased replied that he was.

Jacob Vogle was cross-examined. Third alley is the one the prisoner went into; it is between Middle and West streets; paid no attention to the conversation between Ehrhart and prisoner before they went into the alley. When I first saw the parties that night they were quarreling; had words together; knew Ehrhardt; did not see Rendler after he went into the alley.

Fred. Thurnhurst testified that he saw Ehrhardt, Rendler and deceased on Middle street, at Geib's corner. When Rendler started away deceased, who had been sitting down, got up and talked with Ehrhardt, and then followed Rendler; deceased went into the alley, but came out again, and then both he and Ehrhardt went into the alley; soon deceased came out and said he was cut, and to go for a doctor; could not see what took place in the alley (it was too dark) or hear anything. Witness was standing on the opposite side of Middle street, and going towards the alley the prisoner was four or five feet in advance of deceased and Ehrhardt; they walked slowly.

Mrs. Volz recalled—Waited on deceased in his last illness; had some conversation with him a few hours before he died, and after the physicians had told him he would die; he asked him whether the statement he had given us of how he was cut was just. He said he was. Deceased's statement of the affair was about as has been detailed by the witnesses. He (deceased) went to Rendler, in the alley, to ask what he (Rendler) had against him (deceased), when Rendler said "stand back Louis, or you must die;" just then he felt a cut in his neck, became faint, and did not know what became of him afterward. Witness said he knew deceased and prisoner to have been good friends, had seen them together frequently.

Mrs. Zierger recollected the night Hetzel was hurt; heard Ehrhardt and prisoner quarreling about their wives, deceased taking no part.

Officer Jacob Sarber testified that he arrested the prisoner, who was searched after he was locked up, but not by witness.

Officer Shaffer testified that he searched the prisoner in his cell about an hour after his arrest; found a pair of scissors (shown) in his pantaloons pocket; found no other weapon.

Mrs. Geib was examined, but testified to no new facts, except that when Rendler was arrested he said Ehrhardt must come along, too, and struck at him. Rendler said he did the cutting.

The Commonwealth here rested.

Mr. Stone opened briefly for the defense. They would ask the jury to acquit the prisoner on the ground of self-defense, but he would not argue that question in opening. The fact had been established by the Commonwealth that the main witness, who, more than any one else, know better as to what had occurred, had sworn contrary to the truth, or had concealed the real facts of the case. The prisoner at the time of the occurrence was on his way home peaceably, and at least there was nothing to justify a conviction of the higher degree of homicide. Mr. Stone took occasion to animadvert in rather severe terms upon the conduct of one or more of the Commonwealth witnesses, who, he stated, had endeavored to throw obstacles in the way of the prisoner in preparing for his defense, in keeping witnesses from conferring with counsel.

Felix Andreas testified that he knew the deceased and was also acquainted with the prisoner. On the day before, and on the day of the difficulty was hanging paper with the prisoner; on the evening of Tuesday, August 27th, were drinking beer together until about half past eleven o'clock, when they started to go home; at Geib's they met Hetzel, the deceased, and Ehrhardt; the latter and Rendler got into words; witness and Hetzel spoke together, and witness then noticed Blazius Rendler getting up from the ground; Hetzel then went to them and told Rendler and Ehrhardt to let each other alone; witness said he saw both (Rendler and Ehrhardt) down on the ground fighting; Hetzel parted them, and they made it up; after this witness sat on the steps and slept until after the stabbing. Hetzel and Rendler had always been good friends; the scissors shown were like a pair Hetzel used in his business of paper hanging.

Magdalena Stahl saw deceased but once before he was hurt; waited upon him during his illness. On the day after he was cut he told witness that he did not want to go out that night, but that Ehrhardt promised to do everything for him if he would go out with him—would pay his board for all the winter, and not let him starve; deceased finally consented to go. Witness said Ehrhardt, on last Monday, told her, when she spoke of going to see the attornies for the defense, that she need not go there, as she was not wanted.

Cross-examined—Am a sister of the prisoner, Rendler, but we never knew each other. Our parents died when we were quite young, and he was taken to one place and I to another; I did not see him until he came to America, a short time ago.

It was proposed to call the prisoner's wife to show the menacing manner of the witness, Ehrhardt, towards the prisoner, and thus indicate his bias. Objection sustained.

The testimony here closed, and Mr. Taylor proceeded to address the jury on behalf of the defense. He was followed by Mr. Stone, also for defense, and Col. Duff closed for the Commonwealth. The arguments were brief, as also was the charge of the Court, and the jury, after short deliberation, returned a verdict of "not guilty." The prisoner was discharged.

Young Men's Christian Association.

On last Tuesday evening, in a very pleasant and spirited meeting of the Association, it was decided unanimously to make personal application, at once, to the benevolent public of Pittsburgh for pecuniary aid. A number volunteered their services and will call upon our citizens, presenting cards and books, signed by the President, and bearing the seal of the Association and the names of the collectors. We ask for them a cordial and generous reception, and one worthy of this noble cause. The executive committee were directed to prepare the following card, stating the circumstances and needs of the Association:

TO OUR MEMBERS AND FRIENDS:—The object of our Association is to promote the moral, social, intellectual and spiritual welfare of young men. We seek to attain these ends by furnishing good employment, good boarding houses, social meetings for prayer, and an attractive resort for intellectual improvement and social intercourse. We welcome with warm hearts and hands strangers, clerks and operatives into our rooms and privileges, and by such influences hope to make them more faithful and valuable in their business relations and employments, whilst our members who are engaged in this work are, by these ennobling activities, constantly elevated into the strength of an earnest, honest Christian manhood. By thus elevating one class, we hope to benefit all classes of the community.

Our work, however, cannot be accomplished without the pecuniary as well as moral aid of the people. Our active membership fee has been placed at the small sum of two dollars, so as to bring it within the reach of all classes of young men. Revenue from this source is therefore very small for meeting our expenditures for the equipment of our rooms, paying rent, salaries of employees, advertising, printing, charities and the other current exponses of the Association, requiring at least an annual income of not less than six thousand dollars. To supply the deficit, and meet our present debt of eight hundred dollars, part for expenses of the Christian Convention, the collection at the recent anniversary amounted to eighteen hundred dollars. We, therefore, are constrained to appeal for aid both to our members and friends. To our members, in the confidence that many of them are able and willing to contribute more than the annual fee of two dollars. To our friends, assured that in view of the result of our labors already, under God's blessing, among the young men of our city, they will be glad to extend a liberal hand in placing us upon a permanent basis of support. We appeal to thinking business men and manufacturers, to employers and employed, in a word, to all classes, to sustain us, by the pledge, if possible, of an annual contribution, or the gift of some sum however small.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Y. M. C. A.

Predictions for November—"G. A." Hopeful About the Rivers—Prospects of a November Rise.

"G. A." of the Chronicle, who has had as much to do with the weather as the standard almanacs for the past few years, and in whose judgment we have considerable faith, writes on the characteristics of November as follows: This month is the foreshadowing of approaching winter, as well in the order of time as in the dissolution of all that was beautiful and useful to man. All in nature is now darkened and chilled by the entrance of death-like winter, and begins to assume the sombre robes of the grave. Like the last effort of a departing soul to gather up and manifest its waning powers, November struggles to give us the gentle warmth and mild beauty of the early autumn, in the shape of the so called Indian Summer. This usually prevails from the 2d to the 11th of the month, but in this locality it has not taken its proper place since 1859. In the Indian Summer, the sun at rising presents a bloody red color, the mornings and evenings are smoky, the nights are pleasant and cool, being regulated by the West, Northwest or East winds, and are succeeded by beautiful soft sunshine days, while frosts are in consecutive or alternate nights. From ten o'clock a. m., to one o'clock p. m., the wind veers to the South or Southwest. There are no blustering snow, rain or wind storms, but a steady calm prevails. About the 14th to the 20th the atmosphere is agitated by violent wind and rain storms, the wind suddenly changes to the North and Northwest. There are hard freezes and white frosts at night, with snow squalls in light feathery form. From the 20th to the 30th the ground is frozen to a gray or drab color, the mud is black and stiffened, the small ponds are skimmed with ice, and you may look for a storm within three days after these indications. The last part of the month is uneven, rain, snow, and high wind storms, alternating. If there are heavy rains in the middle of the month, saturating the ground with water, the atmosphere may settle into a dull, damp state, deficient in electricity and attended by an unwholesome malaria. Typhoid scarlet and other fevers, influenza and diphtheria are more than usually fatal. Since 1859 the month has shown its peculiar characteristics, from its very entrance, by rain, snow, mist, white frosts, and freezings, with alternate pleasant and rough days.

The agitation resulting from the commingling of the winter and fall atmospheres causes a more rapid condensation of vapor, and brings the storms which give us high rivers in December. In a series of years the river is higher in December than in any other month, often rising to twenty and twenty-five feet, after the fifteenth. After the fifte nth of November the river rises from ten to fifteen feet, but fails about twice in ten years. It failed to rise in 1856, and it bids fair to fail to rise this year, so far as a coal-boat rise is concerned. The river was six years is eight feet. From 1857 to 1863 it was nine feet. In ten years—1850 to 1860, including two dry seasons, 1854 and 1856, the average was six and a half feet.

The daily average of the thermometer in November is 41 degrees.

The present rain storm is not spent, but suspended. The large amount of rain South and East chilled the atmosphere that the wind, backed up from the North-east by North to North-west so gradual that the storm may return by Friday or Saturday. There is no probability of a coal boat rise in November from present indications. If there is to be one, it can be determined by Saturday next. A rise of ten or twelve feet may possibly come in November.

Police Items.

SURETY OF THE PEACE.

The Brawdy family, it appears, have a liking for Police Courts, and it may be they like the notoriety they gain from figuring in police reports. Yesterday we published an article in which Mrs. Brawdy figured as the leading character, and to-day we have her children, the daughter and son, who appear as prosecutrix and defendant in a surety of the peace case. Martha Brawdy made information before Alderman Taylor, yesterday, against her brother, Martin Brawdy, for threatening violence. She, it appears, resides in Brownstown, and came over to enter bail for her mother's appearance at Court in the case we published yesterday, and in the evening, while at her mother's house, she and the brother got into a quarrel, when, as she alleges, the brother, by threats and menaces, drove her into the street, and pursued her, threatening to kill her. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

Sarah A. Smith, yesterday, made information before Alderman Strain, against Fanny Splaine, Richard Splaine and Edward Ingraham, for surety of the peace. The difficulty originated out of the recent disorderly house case, tried at Court, in which Fanny Splaine was defendant. Warrants were issued against the defendants, who have been arrested, and who will be required to explain their conduct at Court.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

John Smith yesterday made information before Alderman Strain against Richard Splaine, Fanny Splaine, and Edward Ingraham, charging them with assault and battery. Smith, it appears, was a principal witness in the recent bawdy house case in which Fanny Splaine was defendant, and after the trial was over the defendants met him in Miller's burger's alley and gave him a beating for testifying against Fanny. The parties were arrested, and after a hearing were held in the sum of three hundred dollars each for their appearance at Court.

FALSE PRETENSE.

Michael J. Faas yesterday made information against Uriah Young, charging him with obtaining goods under false pretense. Alderman Taylor, before whom the information was made, issued a warrant for his arrest.

Weather Reports.

The following was the state of the weather yesterday at the places indicated:

Cleveland, clearing up; cool.
Cincinnati, cloudy and cool.
Indianapolis, cloudy and cool.
Louisville, clear and cool.
Columbus, cloudy and cool.
New York, cloudy and cool.
Oil City, cloudy and cool.
Philadelphia, cloudy and cool; looks like rain.
St. Louis, cloudy and cool.
Buffalo and Jamestown, N. Y., cloudy and damp.
New Orleans, clear.

Street Nuisance.

A number of express wagon drivers, whose standing place is on Federal street, Allegheny, near the railroad depot—whether lawfully or not we don't know—may be seen while waiting for the trains in groups on the sidewalk, and are often heard uttering derisive or otherwise offensive remarks about ladies or gentlemen who are constantly passing them. Their incumbrance of the sidewalk is contraband of the city ordinance, which the police should enforce against them if misconduct such as is complained of is persisted in.

Allegheny County Agricultural Society.

The Allegheny County Agricultural Society held a regular monthly meeting Wednesday, October 30th, at the office of Messrs. Phelps, Parke & Co., St. Clair street. Present—Messrs. Morton, Murdock, G. G. Negley, Parke, James Reed, George M. Reed, Jennings, Young, and President Chess.

Judge Parke, from the Committee on Collections for the State Fair, made a report, which was accepted and Committee continued.

On motion of Capt. Young, the Chair appointed Messrs. Young, Chess and Parke a Committee to suggest names of parties willing to serve as members of the Board of Managers for the ensuing year, and report previous to the annual election in January.

The same Committee was authorized to draft a new charter for the Society, to be presented to the next Legislature, and also to take charge of the claims of the Society against the State and United States. Adjourned.

Forged Check.—The telegraph informs us that a man named Wm. M. Thompson was arrested in New York yesterday, for presenting a check of E. C. Pike & Co., of St. Louis, on the American Exchange National Bank of New York, for $1,218 50, in favor of D. H. Chambers, of Pittsburgh, whose son he claimed to be. It was proved that young Chambers was at home when Thompson stated that he had found the check on the street in Pittsburgh, while it appears to have been altered from "payable to order" to "payable to bearer." Thompson was committed.

Second Street, between the Birmingham bridge and the point where the paving ends, is just now nothing more nor less than a continuous mud hole. This being the case thus early in the fall, it is not hard to imagine what will be its condition a few weeks hence. The existence of such a thoroughfare, within the city limits, is a disgrace to the corporation. Whose fault is it, and why was the street not paved as authorized by Councils early the present year? It is among the things possible that responsibility will be incurred for damages likely to result.

Choice Dry Goods.—At H. J. Lynch's dry goods store, No. 96 Market street, will be found a large and carefully selected stock of choice seasonable dry goods, embracing all varieties of dress goods, cloaking cloths, cassimeres, and cloths for men and boy's wear, country and eastern blankets, barred flannels and housekeeper's goods. Mr. Lynch manufactures to order cloaks and sacques in the best style of workmanship and latest fashion. The prices prevailing throughout the house are most reasonable.

The first fall of Snow.—The last fall of snow in Pittsburgh this season occurred last night between eight and nine o'clock. It continued for half an hour during which time sufficient snow fell to have completely covered the ground had it not been so wet from the recent rains, which caused the snow to melt as fast as it fell.

Acquitted.—The jury in the case of Alderman Lynch, indicted in the Quarter Sessions Court for larceny by bailee, yesterday morning returned a verdict of not guilty.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

—Several prominent Southerners, in Washington, have recently expressed to the President their conviction that a general outbreak among the negroes is imminent. They say nearly every negro man in the South is well armed, while the whites are almost entirely without means of defence. The impeachment of the President is believed to be the time determined upon for the rising. The gentlemen strongly urge upon the President an increase in the military force now distributed through the South.

—Thaddeus Stevens, in a "conversation" published in the Washington Chronicle, maintains that Congress has full power to regulate the elective franchise in all the States; that the framers of the Constitution never intended that one-half of the nation should be governed by one set of laws and the other half by another set, conflicting on the most important points; that the idea that the Southern States must not incorporate the principles of their constitutions contrary to the principles of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and maintains that the elective franchise is a right obtained from the Constitution, and not a privilege. The conversation is reported for the reason that Mr. Stevens expects to be unable to speak when Congress is assembled.

—The storm at New York, which commenced Monday night, did considerable damage in the city and throughout the neighboring country. The cellars and basements along the river fronts were inundated by the swollen tide. Numerous chimneys were toppled over by the wind, and the ferry boats plying the Hudson and East rivers experienced great difficulty in navigating the rivers. The water rose to the sitting rooms in some of the ferry houses, and inundated others at the bridges. A sloop was capsized off Hoboken, and one man was drowned. A large building was blown down in Hackensack, New Jersey.

—The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, yesterday, refused to grant a writ of error for an appeal from the lower Court from a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the confiscation laws. The decision covered several cases where property has been confiscated for the life estate in the District. An effort will be made to have the constitutionality of the law tested in the United States Supreme Court.

—The statement of the National debt for November 1st will probably show only a very slight reduction. The payments from the Treasury on various accounts for the last half of October have been heavy. The coin balance will be considerably increased, but it will at once be reduced again by the Five-twenty interest, which will be paid off on the first proximo.

—Returns from all the counties in the State of Virginia, except two, of the recent election, show a total vote of 164,188. Of this vote 104,380 were for a Convention, and 59,180 against it. The majority for a Convention is 45,109; 89,538 negroes voted for the Convention, and 629 against it; 15,000 whites were for and 58,033 against a Convention.

NEW ORLEANS.

Important Board of Health Meeting—Quarantine Removed—Public School Resolution.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—At a meeting of the Board of Health last night quarantine was suspended. A motion, offered by Dr. Warren Stone, that the yellow fever be declared no longer epidemic, was opposed and referred to the Committee on Health. Dr. Stone said the disease had run its course and was no longer epidemic, although sporadic cases will continue for some time. In his opinion it is perfectly safe for strangers to come into the city. In his remarks he contended that yellow fever was not contagious under any circumstances.

Mayor Heath has vetoed the ordinance repealing all ordinances providing for the administration of public schools, on the ground that the Council made no provision for any other administration of the schools, leaving them without directors or teachers. The ordinance was passed over the veto by the Board of Assistant Aldermen, but is not yet acted on by the upper Board.

There were only nine yellow fever interments yesterday.

Judge Leamant, of the Sixth District Court, has decided to perpetuate the injunction granted to the School Board, restraining the Mayor from promulgating the ordinance.

A resolution offered in the Board of Aldermen last night, requesting the military authorities to remove the prisoners of war from the city, was lost, two blacks voting in favor and four whites against it.

—The Missouri Republican says: We are informed that Mr. Johnson and Mr. Moles attempted, last Sunday evening, to arrest the notorious outlaws, Fred. Baker, of Howell county, and Jim Sexton, the murderer of Mr. Henry, of Newton county. Our informant states that Johnson and Moles got in company with Sexton and Baker Sunday morning, and were with them all day. In the evening they accompanied them to Mr. Hoobs', on White river, this county, where they were to pass the night. Shortly after their arrival, Johnson and Moles declared their object, and demanded a surrender, whereupon Baker and Sexton drew their revolvers and commenced firing. Eight or ten shots were exchanged in the house, when a general stampede took place. Baker, it is thought, escaped unhurt. Sexton received a wound in the side, but owing to the darkness succeeded in making his escape. None of the party attempting the arrest were hurt. Sexton was seen the day after the party left—he seemed deranged and in great misery. Rewards were offered by the Governor for the apprehension of both these men. They were desperate characters, and a terror to the people in the section where they have been prowling.

—El Paso has a sensation, in which a Methodist minister, by the name of J. B. Braig, plays a most conspicuous part. On Tuesday he was arrested and brought to this place, by Mr. Johnson, City Marshal of El Paso, to stand his trial upon a charge of seduction made against him by a Miss McClellan, daughter of Chas. McClellan, of that place. The act is alleged to have been committed while he was on his way to attend a conference of that denomination. He was taken from here to El Paso yesterday. The woman is a dwarf, and suffers from a deformity, which makes her case more deplorable. The clergyman denies the charge, and feels confident that he can prove his innocense. Heretofore he has sustained the reputation of being one of the meekest followers of Christ. Should the charge be substantiated, we hope to see the clerical seducer properly dealt with by law. —Peoria Transcript, October 24th.

GENERALITIES.

—The Cincinnati Enquirer says that a man who takes life cheerfully is a dangerous character.

—A man was buried in Portsmouth, N. H., on Saturday, who had kept his grave stone and coffin in his garret for twenty years. He was ninety years of age.

—Some one speaking of a highly ornamented house, whose proprietor was not particularly hospitable, said, "I should like to see a little less gilding and more carving."

—Wonders cluster thickly at one place on the Yellowstone River. The water falls over a sixteen hundred feet precipice into a small lake which contains an island covered with boiling springs.

—Rev. J. Kost, LLD., Professor of Chemistry and Geology in Adrian (Mich.) College, has just accepted the Presidency of North Illinois University, at Henry, Ill., tendered to him a month ago, and has been elected Professor of Mental and Moral Science in the same.

—The house of A. Robertson, a printer of Junction City, took fire at noon, on the 22d inst, and two children, aged three years and six months, were burned to death. Mr. Robertson was absent from the city, and his wife had gone on a shopping, leaving the children asleep on on the bed.

—The Cincinnati Enquirer says an unknown man was found suspended by the neck to a crane in a yard in South street on Wednesday morning of last week. He had evidently been dead several hours, but whether he had committed suicide or was murdered it was impossible to tell.

—A vicious dog gave vent to his spite against a man he met on the street in Indianapolis, recently, by biting him on the leg. Instead of dirk and pistol, the man stood still and let him work. The leg being a wooden one, the biting didn't hurt the man, and it seemed to afford the dog the greatest satisfaction.

Gold opened at 140, advanced to 141¼ and closed at 140¾. Cash Gold is quite plenty and four to five per cent. per annum is paid for carrying balance, over. European war rumors have little influence on the market and speculators look to the continued disbursements of the Treasury as the best means to bring down the market; the very reasons given a few weeks ago for the advance are now brought out to bear the market.

Gold bonds remained firm to-day without any apparent advance, but should quotations of our securities be sustained in London, a further advance may be looked for. A great deal of capital is now idle in small sums that cannot otherwise be employed profitably and without any risk, and be under control. The opinion is held that the locking up in a considerable amount of money to be used in temporary investments, for which Government securities offered the best and safest at present prices.

The stock market is firm and slightly higher on the clique stock, but miscellaneous shares and fancies are decidedly lower, and a collapse is looked for unless a new impetus is speedily given. The express shares are lower, and the old complaints with their watered stocks, some like the Adams to the extent of 33 per cent. are only sustained by a few large holders, who have to keep up quotations in order to enable them to sell out. The local money market is very tight, and city shares are almost unsaleable that commanded a premium six months ago.

Closing New York quotations received by Ph. R. Mertz, were as follows:

Gold, 140¾; 1881's, 111¾; 5-20s, 1862, 112¾; 1864, 109½; 1865, 109¾; Consols, 107¾; 10-40s, 109¾; 7-30, 106.

The dry goods trade at New York continued during the early part of last week in the same dull and unsatisfactory condition noted the previous week, and on Wednesday prices of domestics met with a general break down. The Financial Chronicle of that city says:

"This was brought about by a misunderstanding between the large jobbing houses, and after a day's quite active business the agents refused to accede to the reduction, and trade was again at a stand still, but since the agents have assented to the decline, and it has become general through the list of prints and brown goods, there is a fair trade doing, in addition to take goods, and with a better activity in the interior cities there is a general belief that prices are low and they will be this season. At the close a steadier feeling prevails with a fair business. In woolen and foreign goods there is but little of interest to note. Trade is very quiet. The export demand for domestics quite liberal.

"The conversion of the seven-thirties is steadily progressing, and the amount over the five-twenties are just now rather more than any other variety of gold bearing bonds, and the sales of these two permanent investments are moderately large. The foreign demand for our securities is now very light. Financiers are slowly discounting the probable character of the Secretary's annual report to Congress. Rumors of a vigorous movement looks a return to specie payments are current. October compounds have been selling at a premium. Banks want them to exchange for their three-per-cents. These three-per-cents. are held at an advance, and are not very plenty. The banks are rapidly stopping the issue of their own notes, and which they have room for in their reserve.—Phila. Press.

Among merchants the universal complaint is of want of purchasers of goods at large reduction from cost, and great difficulty in meeting daily payments. Nothing is permanently settled except that about one-half of their bill-books, their house and store rents, and their house and store expenses. These latter remain the only items on which they stood when war profits were made, and are being met by drafts upon capital, and in too many cases by the proceeds of goods sold to be paid for. Parties with idle capital are waiting to see what Congress will do, and prefer call loans, and the present rate of buying anything whether of stocks or goods. As Congress will not do anything hastily, the present uncertainty in commercial affairs promises to be greater before action is taken by Congress.—N. Y. Tribune, 28th.

—There have been no new developments in the Mill Creek Bank robbery, the past week, save that he borrowed money, in small sums, from many of his friends, and is supposed to have left the city with the first train. Some steps have been taken to secure his arrest, but what they are, whether in the shape of a reward for the apprehension, or by putting some sharp detective on his track, is known only to one or two parties. His appearance is so peculiar that only persons who ever saw him once could not fail to identify him, whether he is discovered in Canada or Australia. It is certain that his delinquencies will reach far beyond the amount of money actually discovered in business circles to-day; and the fact transpired that he was guilty of a forgery some fifteen years ago, and served for three or four occasions since that time he has repeated his former crime, which was known to several persons in this city. Since his sudden and mysterious disappearance on Saturday last. Our reporter did injustice to S. E. Hulbert, of Racine, in stating that he had some interest in Mr. Michael's operations. The sum is much below this, and will not, we are assured, affect the credit of Mr. Hulbert. He was always retained among our first business men.—Chicago Republican, 28th.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, WEDNESDAY, October 30, 1867.

CRUDE.—The oil market is a good deal like the weather, very sensitive. This morning, with the cloudy, lowering weather, we heard their views thinking that, for the time being, at least, the chances for a bulk rise had passed; in the evening, however, it again clouded up, and besides this, G. A. says that the rain is not over—only suspended. There were sales in the aggregate of some four thousand barrels at 11c, to be delivered on first water, as well as for all November, seller's option. Spot oil is dull and unsettled, and may be quoted nominally at 10½@11c for regular, and 12@12½c for fancy. Refined—The market for bonded oil was again dull and weak to-day, and compared with yesterday, prices have still further declined. We can report sales of 1000 bbls for November, at 24c; 1000 do do at 33½c; and 2000 do at 32c. Spot oil is reported as having been sold to a considerable extent in Philadelphia to-day at 31c, 31½c and 32c—mainly at 31½c. It was thought that with the improved character of the market for crude, that the market would have been better to-day, but, unfortunately, instead of this, it was, if anything, worse.

The receipts for the week were from the following States: New York, 1,070; Kentucky, 475; Ohio, 1090; Illinois, 2,330; Indiana, 908; Texas, 205. The market is dull and nearly all were sold. The quality was generally fair, with some extra Ohio and Kentucky. It was a hard market to close, and owners lost money. The prices were as follows:

Prime, per lb	15 @16½c
Medium, per lb	13 @14½c
Poor, per lb	10 @12c
Average, per lb	13½c

A very few extra sold at 17c, and some at 9½. Morgan & Mahalen sold 65 fair Ohio, 7 cwt, 14c; J. Cassiday, 105 fat Ohio, 8¼ cwt, at 14@15c; O. P. C. Evans, 168 Indians, 6¾ cwt, at 12@13c; P. W. Crow, 89 Illinois, 6 cwt, at 13c; Allerton & Staley, 45 Illinois, 7¼ cwt, wholesaled at 13@14c per head; same number retailed 7¼ cwt, at 13½@15½c; F. Ford, 44 fat Illinois, 6¼ cwt, at 13½@15½c.

Sheep—There is a full supply, and the market is dull, but a shade of improvement is noticeable. Prime sheep sold at 8@8½c; some extra at 8c, and common to medium at 3½@4½c. Lambs sold at 7¾c for extra, 6½@7c for prime and 6@6½c for common to medium.

Hogs—With 90 cars on the market to-day it was slow, and prices lower. Prime sold at 7@7¼c, and common to medium at 6@6½c.

The total receipts for the week were: 7,060 cattle; 28,384 sheep, and 20,779 Hogs.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, October 29, 1867.

The weather having again cleared up, will probably have a tendency to infuse a little more life into the general markets, which have been remarkably dull for several days. The prospects for an early resumption of navigation are not, we regret to state, as encouraging as they were on Monday and Tuesday, and nothing would contribute more to infuse life and animation into business here like a rise, as there are many interests suffering for want of cheap transportation.

GRAIN—There is a continued fair demand for Wheat, and prime Red we continue to quote at $2.50 in first hands, and $2.55@2.60 in store. No. 1 Spring Wheat is held at $2.30@2.35. Corn is in good supply and very dull but unchanged; we now quote at $1 20@1.25 for mixed to prime Yellow; new crop is dull and nominal at $1. Barley is steady and unchanged; sale of 1000 bush prime Spring at $1.35. Oats quiet and unchanged at 65@66c on track, and 68@70c in store. Sales of Rye at $1.45@1.50.

FLOUR—There are no new characteristics in the Flour market worthy of special notice. We can report regular sales from store at $10.50 @11 for Spring Wheat, $12.50@13 for Winter Wheat; and $14@15.50 for fancy brands. Rye Flour, $8.50@9.

PROVISIONS — Bacon is dull but unchanged at 14c for Shoulders; 17@18c for Ribbed and Clear Sides; 22c for Plain Sugar Cured Hams, and 23@24c for Canvassed do. Lard may be quoted at 14c, and Mess Pork at $25.50.

BUTTER—Is dull with a supply in excess of the demand, and prices, if anything, are tending downward. Strictly prime Roll cannot be quoted above 38c.

EGGS—Under the influence of increased arrivals are hardly so firm, though prices are unchanged at 27@28.

CHEESE—Is steady and unchanged; sales at 16@17c for Hamburg, and 13@19c for Goshen.

APPLES—There is no falling off in the arrivals, and with a supply largely in excess of the demand, the market is very dull, though prices are unchanged at $2.50@3.50 for fair to prime, and $4 for choice, in a retail way.

POTATOES—Peach Blows are in good supply and dull but unchanged at $1 per bushel. New Jersey Reds are quoted at $1@1.50 per bbl.

CRANBERRIES—Steady, with regular sales at $10 for Common, and $13@14 for cultivated.

GROCERIES—The market for the past week has been quiet, and not as many goods selling as in September, the demand being only for immediate wants. The dullness is owing partially to the recent dry weather and low water. With a good river we might expect a lively trade. Sugars are heavy and may be quoted a shade lower since our last report. The stock is light, but the demand is also light. Coffee dull and lower, especially for the medium grades. Molasses unchanged; Syrups weak. The following are the market rates:

COFFEE—Choice, 26¾c prime, 26½@26¾c; good 24c; fair, 23c; ordinary, 21@22c; Java, 27½c; Laguayra, 27c.

SUGARS—Porto Rico, choice, 14¼c; good, 13¾; fair, 13c; Cuba, strictly prime, 13¾; good, 12¾; fair, 12c; N. O. 11@11¾c. Refined—Standard, 17½c; A, 16½@16¾c; B, 15¾c; Extra C, 15; C Yellow, 15c.

RICE—Rangoon, 8¾@10¾c; Carolina, 10½ to 11½c.

SYRUPS—Common, 90c; good, 75c; prime, 85@ 90c; choice drips, $1.05@1.10.

TEAS—Y. H. 81@1.70; G. P., $1.25@1.85; Oolong, 80@$1.40; Souchong, $1@1.80.

SODA—Boda Soda—English, 8½. Concentrated Lye, $6.50.

SPICES—Pepper, 24c; Allspice, 32c; Cassia, 70; Cloves, 45c.
